

XXX OLYMPIAD

LONDON 2012 SUMMER OLYMPICS

The largest peacetime logistics exercise undertaken in the United Kingdom.

Every Olympic Games presents its own unique challenges, requiring a local focus to deliver solutions. With numerous internal stakeholders including functional areas like sport, security, transport and broadcast and external stakeholders including the International Olympic Committee (IOC), International Sports Federations, local authorities and security agencies, the challenge of London 2012 could not be underestimated.

EPG provided an integrated delivery solution to the venues & infrastructure team at London 2012 responsible for £530m of infrastructure works across twenty-eight (28) competition venues, as well as twenty plus (20+) non-competition support venues. Building on our key role in forming the strategic approach in the early stages of event planning for the olympic park, we specifically played an integral role in event overlay & infrastructure planning, project management, event security infrastructure and event operations throughout the games.

Working alongside the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games (LOCOG) teams to coordinate input from its functional areas, our project managers delivered effective and cost efficient games time venues within national legislative requirements, planning permissions and budgetary frameworks as well as ensuring individual sports were able to integrate with venues and meet overlay and technical requirements of their International Federations, as well as monitoring overlay procurement, venue construction, overlay installation, overlay removal and the venue reinstatement process during the event closure phase.

For LOCOG on request from the UK Home Office, we provided a turnkey security infrastructure solution for all London venues outside of the Olympic Park. This was a pivotal role with onerous security measures introduced into the project late in the programme. Our project managers led the security infrastructure project, formulating the scope design and budget, ensuring the works were integrated into the rest of the installation programme.

Supplying senior staff in venue management roles of the olympic park common domain, we oversaw all aspects of games time planning and operations during the event. Our key priorities in this role were to develop and lead a cross-functional team, oversee responsibility for the 5000+ staff in the common domain, as well as ensure the safety and enjoyment of the estimated five million plus (5,000,000+) visitors to the precinct.

Our ability to react quickly with the right solutions and the right people to meet LOCOG's needs led to us building a team of ninety (90) staff in either secondment, contract or turnkey projects.
